

The Malabar

Guide to Dance Schools & Studios for Toronto & Ottawa

Updated 2015 Edition

INTRODUCTION

As a dancewear retailer, we are frequently approached by students and parents who are looking for information on local dance classes. In response to these requests, we published the first MALABAR GUIDE TO DANCE SCHOOLS & STUDIOS back in 2006. It was well-received in the community, and so we've been publishing updated editions of our Guide biennially ever since.

The Guide is designed to help dance students find classes in their area, while at the same time give some much-deserved promotion to our local schools and studios.

This publication is our way of saying THANK YOU for shopping at Malabar. Thank you to our customers for their loyalty over the years, to our local dance schools for their referrals and to our dancewear suppliers for their generous purchasing of ad space in this Guide.

For added convenience, the Guide has also been published on our company website at www.malabar.net/danceguide.pdf.

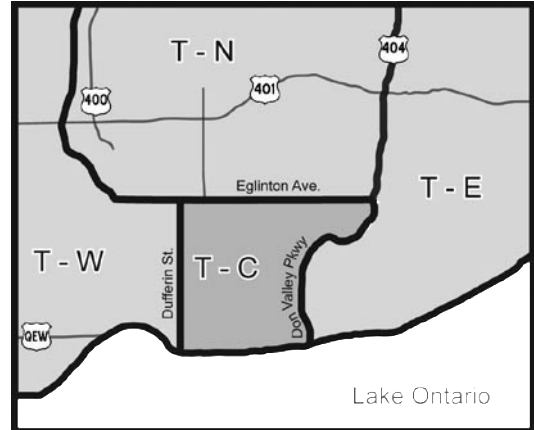

We hope you find this information useful and we welcome your comments or suggestions for future editions by email to info@malabar.net.

THE HISTORY OF MALABAR

Sara Mallabar started her business around 1900 in Winnipeg Manitoba and by 1906 she was the proprietor of "S. Mallabar Costume and Hair Goods".

In 1923 Sara's son Harry moved to Toronto to establish operations, setting up shop as a costume and dancewear supplier on Spadina Avenue, dropping an "L" in the name to avoid confusion with the Winnipeg store.

During the 1930's on a quest for more space, Malabar moved into the heart of Toronto's renowned "Entertainment District" and by 1950 had become the leading costume house in Canada, providing costumes for theatrical/musical productions and masquerade galas.

Today, with locations in Toronto and Ottawa, Malabar continues to operate three distinct departments: the retail store, selling costumes, theatrical makeup and dancewear; the costume rental department; and the opera department, which manufactures and rents theatrical-quality costumes.

Sincere dedication to craftsmanship and a keen sense of customer needs has seen us through over 90 years of business, and we look forward to serving you for many years to come!
